A THOUGHT

Be ye not as the horse, or as the mule, which have no understanding; whose mouth must be held in with bit and bridle, lest they come near unto thee.—Ps. 32:9.

Fully to understand a grand and beautiful thought requires, perhaps, as much time as to conceive it.—Joubert.

FORD VERSUS ROCKEFELLER

The New York World recently published an interesting editorial based on Chauncey M. Depew's wonderment that Henry Ford should be so much more popular than is John D. Rockefeller. Mr. Depew recalled the immense sums given by Mr. Rockefeller to welfare projects, the latest of which is the allotment of $150,000 for the distribution of insulin to cure diabetes.

The subject is interesting because John D. Rockefeller after giving away $500,000,000 to help humanity has aroused no warmth of public feeling. The World thinks that Rockefeller is looked upon as a cold and calculating intelligence aloof from the ordinary run of mankind and subject to suspicion. It believes that Ford is liked because he is apparently a common man, no brainier than other common men; the mere recipient of the gifts of freak fortune.

It is probable that Henry Ford's appeal to popular liking is founded on something more practical and definite. The impression over the country is that Ford is a sharer of his good fortune. True, he does not establish foundations for the study and cure of human ailments, but he does give jobs at high wages. The oil corporations which Mr. Rockefeller established were operated on a system of keen financing. Every possible saving was put into effect. Wages were good but no higher than good business principles seemed to demand. Ford stands out the liberal employer; Rockefeller as a hard grinder.

There is still another angle. Ford made it possible for the poor man to ride in a motor car and to own it. He has raised wages and reduced the price of his product. Meanwhile, gasoline agencies have never appeared to be straining to reduce the price of gasoline which makes the car a means of transportation.

Even so, why Ford for president?—Louisville Times.

EDITORIAL PARAGRAPHS

Facts revealing the trouble in the coal industry and the remedy for it which the United States Coal Commission will bring to light out of a mass of documentary evidence submitted by the unions and operators will be welcomed by the public. Incidentally, the U. M. W. of this district would do well to wait for the report before agitating any strike.

A union official, speaking at the recent convention here, boasted that the miners alone had been able to maintain the war-time wage scale. Yet they are not satisfied. Pennsylvania miners are now demanding an increase of twenty percent over their present wage. Where will the demands end? The public which ultimately bears the burden would like to know.

Conservative citizens say that certain hotels and rooming places here are dens of immorality. The rumors have become so numerous and consistent that they have crystallized into something akin to certainty. A greater vigilance of officers and more searching investigations by grand juries would seem to be in order. The ancient adage, "Where there is so much smoke there is bound to be fire" is hard to beat.

Despite the fact that a number of citizens would like to have a Fourth of July celebration here, no attempts have been made to inaugurate such an event. Instead of hundreds of people coming here on the holiday, numbers will leave for other places which will appropriately celebrate the Declaration of Independence. It is too late now to plan any public celebration and the Fourth promises to be like other days, except perhaps a little duller.

THE GRIST O' GOTHAM

BY CASUAL STROLLER

NEW YORK, June 30.—Morningside Heights is in for a scholarly summer. The annual New York invasion of summer students at Columbia University this year numbers 11,000.

School teachers, old, young and other wise; students, brilliant and no so brilliant—all are pouring into town. They come from every state and they camp out in furnished rooms, hotels and college dormitories.

To some the summer school spells an ideal way of spending the vacation in the metropolis; to others it is a necessity for getting caught up with studies missed or flunked.

Not much goes to waste in New York—in one Broadway play the big scene takes place in a large office, which is a stage-set fully equipped. During the off hours the manager of the theatrical company uses the same desk and chair and blotter for transacting real business.

Staten Islanders are eating more peanuts and candy and chewing more chewing gum. For the last five years concessions in the St. George Terminal of the municipal ferry rented for $18,000 a year. A new offer of $71,000 a year has been made for the same concessions.

All the financiers are not in banks. There's a little man who rambles by the corner of Sixth avenue and 28th street and adjacent corners who deals in money. He sells money. His stock in trade comprises German marks and Russian rubles, which he sells to garment workers. Noble looking Russian notes with six figures go for from 15 to 25 cents.

This money merchants went into business on the theory that lots of people would buy them just to hold them, admire them, to look at—to own. "It reminds them," he says, "of the days when they were youngsters in Russia and a thousand rubles was a fortune. On pay days lots of workers take home a shoe box full of these notes. One man bought a million rubles to take home and show his mother, a very old woman who hasn't heard much about the ruble's hard luck."

People in New York are thoroughly accustomed to seeing women smoke cigarets in restaurants, but a number of people in a Greenwich village restaurant, did look up with interest when a middle-aged, conservative looking woman took forth a man-sized cigar and puffed away at it with great enjoyment.

A 17th century bronze gate which has withstood the slams of some half dozen historic periods, was damaged by fire the other day. The gate belonged to an antique dealer on East 56th street who had placed it between his store and the streets despite the fact that h valued it at $6000.

A Long Island youth, said to be one of the most promising among the rising young bootleggers, never transports his wares from storehouse to patron in cases. He has the bottles stored under the seats. Then always has two mart young flapper ride about with him. They give the festive appearance of a joy ride rather than just dull business.

A traveling man just back from the southern part of Ohio is teaching New York a new drink. It is called a Cincinnati sundae. This is the recipe: put a little ice cream in a glass; add a little ginger ale and incorporate the two thoroughly; then add more ginger ale, which immediately fizzes up and produces an elegant collar.

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO HER FRIEND, SALLY ATHERTON

DEAR SALLY:

I know of course that dad would help you over your trouble, for you have always been to him just like one of his own daughters.

He said to me as he handed me this check for two thousand dollars, which I am enclosing:

"You tell that little girl to keep a stiff upper lip and I'll see that she gets through.

"Tell her to send her husband where he will have the care of the best specialists and if she feels that it is too hard for her to keep her position, to throw it up and just turn her attention to that great big foolish boy that she married."

And here, Sally dear, is something that I want to do. Dad gave me also a couple of thousand dollars and I am sending one of them to you. I want you to use this, not for Sam but for yourself, and I am going to ask you to do something that you may think is foolish with it.

I want you to buy a couple of pretty frocks and above all two nifty There is nothing in this world that hats. There is nothing in this world that makes a woman feel quite so much as though she were absolutely friendless as to go around in shabby clothes.

Knowing you as I do, dear Sally, I expect that is just exactly what you are doing at the present moment while you are spending every cent you can rake and scrape to get Sam back where he can see again.

Don't think I am frivolous, dear, or silly to ask you to do this. I know exactly the effect it will have upon your spirits and I also want you to know that I am not one of your fair weather friends. Dad has not only promised me, but told me to write you in this letter that anything you need or want to make you comfortable is yours.

Give my love to Sam. Beatrice Grimshaw sent me a letter that he wrote her that was very despairing. He told her he wanted her to tell you to let him go to a charitable institution. Poor old chap! I feel sorry for him.

Why, if Jack were in his condition, I'd work my fingers to the bone and live on a crust of bread before I'd let him do a thing like that and I know it is exactly the same with you.

Of course, dear, we women find lots of fault with our men over trivial things, but when the real sorrows or troubles come, they are our men and it's a case always with the most of us of sticking to the ship however much disabled it might be.

I'm sure, Sally, that everything is coming out all right for you, and dad wants me to tell you—and this part of the letter I want you to read to Sam—that just as soon as he isable, he will give him a position in the steel works.

Until then, please, give your friends the privilege of doing the things for you that they know you would do for them. Lovingly,

LESLIE.

HARLAN GIRL WINS MEDAL BY ESSAY ON GOOD ROADS

HARLAN, June 30.—Miss Dorothy Louise Roberts was first in a state essay contest on good roads and received a gold medal from Wellington Patrick, director of the Department of University Extension at Lexington Saturday.

Miss Roberts won over a large number of contestants throughout the state and her essay was sent to Washington, D. C., to compete with the winners in other states for the Firestone Scholarship, a prize of about $600 per year in any college.

Mr. Patrick said that Miss Roberts' essay was splendidly written and he had great hopes of it winning the national contest.

World Educators Meet to Plan For Coming "Mental Era"

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—World wide mobilization of educational force, to establish universal and permanent peace—

Entrance of education on the world stage as a solver of international evils.

These will be chief among the aims of 20,000 educators from all parts of the globe who meet here and in Oakland, June 28 to July 6, for the National Educational Association's world conference on education.

From the orient and from Europe, from North and South America, from countries tucked away in far corners of the earth, teachers and professors are coming to tackle this problem which has baffled the brightest minds statesmen, diplomats, militarists of all ages.

Possibilities growing out of the meet are unlimited, according to leaders who have been perfecting plans for the past five years. The proposed peace program will be the test indicating the arrival or non-arrival of a new era, they say.

Dominant Force

If success on this knottiest of problems shows the new era is here, future progress of the world can be planned intelligently and we will have entered upon the long predicted "mental era" they declare.

Education, established as a dominant controlling force, will wield the world into new shapes with the succeeding generations, each step forward forethought and foreschemed, according to these leaders.

The delegates to the meeting will not be confronted with any League of Nations or world court plans. The cure for war, as they will hear it unfolded, rests solely upon a better understanding of our neighbors in "the neighborhood of the world."

Education of the 400,000,000 pupils of the assembled teachers so that each will fully appreciate the human element in ever foreign country, forgetting race hatreds and national jealousies, will be the proposed panacea.

Glorification of war will be diminished, without sacrificing love of flag or country. In its place will be proposed an intensive educational campaign to present to youth forcibly the valor and patriotism of peace and peace-time accomplishments for mankind.

Among measures designed to break down national barriers of hatred and suspicion and to instill in the minds of all coming citizens a feeling of friendship and understanding of their international neighbors, the following will be advocated:

Encouragement of correspondence between school children of different nations;

More extensive exchange between millions of teachers in schools and professors in universities;

Study of world civics, covering the essential contacts necessitated by trade travel, commerce and the exchange of inventions and learning;

Preparation of a series of international readers, presenting a choice of reading material from all nations and selected to truly present the ideas and ideals which each nation deems of universal worth;

Revision of textbooks, eliminating international animosities sometimes carried in present books and presenting facts in a background calculated to heighten the respect of the people of one nation for those of another.

World Holiday

As a visible token of the "peace era" it will be proposed that a day be set apart each year to be known as "Good Will Day". Upon this day, instructors will hold special exercises to emphasize the love of foreign neighbors and the detriment of war.

The main work of constructing the peace program will be delegated to the world conference on education, a preliminary meeting of 1000 educators specially selected to carry out this work.

But the whole N. E. A. convention is expected to keep the peace versus war issue ever paramount.

However, other measures, chiefly designed to enhance the value of education, will be discussed. Among them will be:

Request for educational attaches at all embassies and legations as a means of contact between educators of various nations so that each may profit by the experience of others;

Extension of free library service and the practicability of establishing standards for such libraries;

Abolition of illiteracy where it still exists;

Encouragement of thrift, an despecially as applied to schools and churches for farming people.

Both San Francisco and Oakland are planning many entertainments for the visitors. Chief among these will be a "Pageant of All Nations," in which each of 700 people of different countries, dressed in his or her national costume will participate. Miss Margaret M. Krsak of San Francisco will be in charge of this pageant and, according to present plans, will herself personify the Goddess of Liberty.

SAVED SICK SPELLS

Black-Draught Found Valuable by a Texas Farmer, Who Has Known Its Usefulness Over 30 Years.

Naples, Texas.—"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for years—I can safely say for more than 30 years," declares Mr. H. H. Cromer, a substantial, well-known farmer, residing out from here on Route 3.

"I am 43 years old, and when a small boy I had indigestion and was puny and my folks gave me a liver regulator. Then Black-Draught was advertised and we heard of it.

"I began to take Black-Draught, and have used it, when needed, ever since. I use Black-Draught now in my home, and certainly recommend it for any liver trouble.

"I have given it a thorough trial, and after thirty years can say Black-Draught is my stand-by. It has saved me many sick spells."

Mr. Cromer writes that he is "never out of Black-Draught," and says several of his neighbors prefer it to any other liver medicine. "I always recommend Black-Draught to my friends," he adds.

This valuable, old, powdered liver medicine is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and has none of the bad effects so often observed from the use of calomel, or other powerful mineral drugs.

Be sure to get the genuine, Thedford's.

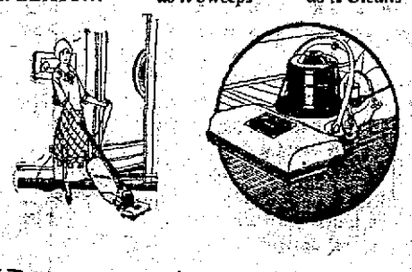
The secret of Proper Rug Cleaning

Thousands of housewives have learned the secret of saving time and of eliminating drudgery in cleaning and dusting.

Would you also learn these many things? Then let us demonstrate The Hoover in your home; without obligation, of course.

The HOOVER
It BEATS... as it Sweeps as it Cleans



Hoover Attachments

In addition to keeping rugs clean and making them wear years longer, The Hoover provides powerful suction for Hoover attachments, which are easy to connect and simple to use. With the newly designed and greatly simplified Hoover attachments, all hangings, furnishings, fixtures and everything exposed where dust may collect, can be readily reached and dustlessly cleaned and freshened.

Hand Beating Injures Rugs

Hand-beating dislodges the dirt by sheer force. But this severe pounding mats the nap, racks and strains the body of the rug, and materially shortens its life.

The Hoover Harmlessly Beats

As it Thoroughly Sweeps and Suction Cleans

A demonstration will show how harmless beating, thorough sweeping and powerful air-cleaning are ideally combined in The Hoover.

Hoover beating is effective because it is swift and continuous. It is not severe. The action of The Hoover, as it beats out the deeply lodged dirt, is entirely harmless.

Hoover sweeping quickly gathers up even the stubbornest clinging thread, hair, lint, and litter. At the same time, the nap is straightened and the colors brightened.

Hoover suction whisks into The Hoover bag all this beaten-out swept-up dirt and dust.

Hoover-cleaned rugs are actually guaranteed to wear years longer because they are harmlessly beaten, swept and suction-cleaned immaculately free from destructive nap-cutting dirt.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

Every time his train stops long enough President Harding, on his way to the Pacific coast and Alaska, makes a speech about his policies. Otherwise there's nothing political about his jaunt. It's hard to see what else there is but anyway that's what the administration managers say.

At St. Louis the president discussed his world court plan.

At Kansas City he took the cork out of a new prescription for the railroads—a plan for dividing them into "regional groups," each under "common management," all under "strict government supervision," the stronger groups to support the weaker ones.

Otherwise government ownership, which he deprecates, is inevitable, the president says.

Time enough hasn't passed for many people to have formed much of a conclusion concerning much of the theme's merits, but it's evident already there's going to be plenty of opposition. Maybe lots of support, too. However, those who don't like the idea have been first to express themselves.

Call It Medicine

Prohibition continues to be the country's main news topic.

England balked on allowing the United States to chase smugglers more than three miles off shore, at sea. This spoiled one plan the government hoped would help the situation.

It has been announced that enforcement officers will not interfere with alcoholics on foreign ships from countries whose laws require such drinks to be served to their sailors. That is, they won't interfere unless the amount of drinks on board exceeds the supply the ships' own crews need.

This liquor's to be considered "medicine."

As "dry" a paper as the Cleveland Plain Dealer says of course it's a subterfuge but it's a harmless quibble merely a practical common sense interpretation."

Gone Wet Again

Canada has refused an American request to restrict liquor exporting to the United States. Manitoba province, Canada, after giving prohibition a thorough test, has voted to abandon it. Makers of light alcoholic drinks there can sell direct to consumers. The government will handle the "harder" ones.

Canada's attitude blights the government's hopes of checking the flow of drinks across the northern border. On the contrary, New York state's withdrawal of support from the government's activities against smuggling has stimulated this traffic mightily.

In the Ruhr

France has announced her intention to seize the Ruhr industries producing anything she can apply toward settlement of her war damage claims.

She says also she's going to conscript German labor to keep these industries going, which sounds something like slavery. For workers who balk, imprisonment is threatened, up to fifteen years and for those who commit acts of sabotage, death, it's stated, will be the penalty.

DODGE BROTHERS TOURING CAR

If there is one word which will sum up the average owner's impression of Dodge Brothers Touring Car, that word is dependable.

If there is a word to express the quality which Dodge Brothers have striven, above all else, to build into the Touring Car, it is —again—dependable.

Indeed, it is not too much to say that the word dependable has come to be definitely associated, the nation over, with Dodge Brothers Touring Car—and the other vehicles bearing their name.

Nor have Dodge Brothers built this enviable reputation through advertising. They have built motor cars, so dependable in fact that the word has presented itself automatically to the public mind.

PRESBYTERIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC ENJOYED

The following appreciation of the Presbyterian Sunday school picnic yesterday is by one who spent the day enjoying it:

The Sabbath School of the First Presbyterian church enjoyed their annual picnic held yesterday on Fern Lake hill, where a good representation of the Sunday school gathered to do full justice to the excellent picnic dinner in which fried chicken, delicious sandwiches, salads, beaten biscuit, innumerable cake sand a huge freezer of ice cream vanished in an amazing way.

It was not definitely decided who occupied the position of priority on the occasion, but there was no doubt but that the lovely little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heaton, two months old that day, was the youngest there and she was the recipient of much attention.

Many were the diversions of the day, not the least of which was swing in worn-out automobile tires, kept as busy as ever on a Ford spindle.

It is highly probable that we people living in Middlesboro, because of our constant nearness and our constant intimacy with the mountain tops, crowned with glorious forests, are forgetful of their beauties and the impression they make on all lovers of nature who see them fo rthe first time. Surely they were never more beautiful than yesterday, when fresh from the storms of the night before and enlivened by the summer breeze, their foliage glistened beneath the rays of the June sun. In the company yesterday were a number who saw the mountains for the first time, and they were loud in their expressions of admiration.
